ANNUAL REPORT

TO THE CONTRIBUTORS TO THE PENNSYLVANIA HOSPITAL.

THE want of variety afforded in the oversight of the Hospital beyond the daily report of admissions of casualties and sickness, affords but little opportunity for a report to the Contributors that could materially interest them further than the satisfaction derived from knowing that all the patients who were admitted within the walls of the Hospital received prompt attention, combining the best medical and surgical skill with good nursing and kind treatment, tending much to their comfort and to the restoration of their health.

In these respects the Hospital is unsurpassed, and we would not withhold the meed of praise justly due to the physicians and surgeons composing the medical staff, as well as the resident physicians and the officers of the household, all of whom appear to be zealous in the good cause, and with ability and faithfulness discharge their respective duties. These remarks are equally applicable to that branch of the institution where those laboring under mental diseases are kindly and carefully treated.

The success which has attended the efforts employed on behalf of that afflicted portion of the human family under the care and immediate oversight of Dr. Thomas S. Kirkbride, Physician-in-Chief and Superintendent, and his able assistants, has been satisfactory, and we would call your especial attention to his printed report, giving much information in relation to the very interesting class of patients under his care. In this report the gratifying fact is announced of the completion and occupancy of the ward erected by the liberal bequest made for this especial object by our late friend, Joseph Fisher, whereby twenty-four additional patients can be comfortably accommodated. This increased ability to provide for the sufferers is not commensurate with the increasing demands upon the institution; but the Managers indulge the hope that as in the past, so may the future prove that when funds may be required to extend the benefits of either branch of the Hospital, they will be generously provided.

While speaking of the Department for the Insane, the Board cannot withhold the expression of their conviction that the high character which it has always maintained, has been justly earned by a faithful application of all the means at its disposal, and by an earnest and unselfish devotion on the part of its officers to the great objects of its foundation. While thousands of our own citizens, and many from nearly every section of the country, have been the recipients of its benefits, we fully believe, from personal examination, never intermitted a single week during the last twenty-eight years, and from a familiarity with all the cases received, that no one has ever been placed there but from a sincere desire to benefit the individual, and that none have ever been detained a day longer than was believed to be for their permanent advantage. There has never been a question on these points among those whose studies and experience have made them competent judges in regard to mental diseases, and no one should be willing to put in opposition to these the crude opinions of those who have no knowledge of insanity, or of those who are actuated by bad motives or are still laboring under delusions. The Board of Managers have never felt called upon to reply to aspersions coming from such sources, and which they believed the community knew how to appreciate; but they cannot refrain from placing on record their own most decided convictions on the subject.

An interesting Report of the Medical and Surgical Staff having under their care the sick and surgical cases in the City Department of the Hospital, accompanies this Report. They deserve great praise for their assiduous attentions to the inmates of its wards, whose sufferings have been greatly alleviated and their lives in many cases preserved by the skilful treatment of the physicians and surgeons who devote their time and talents to this benevolent object without pecuniary reward.

The Pennsylvania Hospital, in both of its departments, should be regarded as an extensive charity, not making, nor desiring to make money from its operations, and always dependent, to a great extent, on the bounty of a benevolent community for the means of dispensing its benefits to those under suffering and affliction.

It is a source of gratification to your Board to state that the amphitheatre for lectures and surgical operations which for several years had been in contemplation, and the necessity for which was daily more apparent, has at length been completed, and was formally opened on the ninth day of First Month last, by an interesting address delivered by Dr. John F. Meigs, one of the medical staff of the Hospital, to four or five hundred students and physicians, and also to the members of your Board.

By the completion of this building greatly increased facilities are afforded in the performance of difficult operations requiring a proper admission of light, which will remedy an inconvenience seriously felt heretofore in the old operating room, situated as it is in the centre of the main building, and ill adapted for a proper admission of light, and also deficient in the means of accommodating the students attending the clinical and general lectures at the Hospital. The number of these is constantly increasing with the increase of our population and the numerous applicants from the different sections of our extensive country who desire to avail themselves of the benefits of this excellent school, and to make use of the greatest facilities for attaining the object of their pursuit in the limited period devoted to elementary studies, whereby they may qualify themselves to render essential service to those who may be afflicted by sickness or accident in their future positions in life. This building was erected in accordance with the authority of the Contributors, at their last annual meeting. For several years your Board indulged the hope that by the proffered aid of others not members of the Board, an appeal to our fellow-citizens for this specific purpose would be crowned with success, and that the necessity for encroaching upon the capital of the institution would be obviated; but finding that these expectations were not likely to be realized, they were obliged to resort to this alternative as the only means at their disposal for accomplishing so desirable an object. There has been received from our friends subscriptions amounting to \$12,742 $\frac{82}{100}$  to aid in the erection of the lecture and operating room, whilst the cost of the building has been \$27,072 $\frac{08}{100}$ , leaving a deficiency of \$14,329 $\frac{26}{100}$  to be supplied from our capital stock, unless additional aid for this important purpose can be obtained from other sources.

The completion of the sheds in the yard, alluded to in our Report of last year, serves as an adjunct in the restoration to health of convalescent patients, whose comfort is promoted by an exchange of the atmosphere of the sick wards for the invigorating air of this open space.

From our Treasurer's Report it appears that the receipts from the income of investments have been during the last year \$33,383 $\frac{28}{100}$ , whilst the payments for the support of the Pine Street Hospital in which the sick and surgical patients are treated have amounted to \$46,150, showing a deficiency of \$12,766 $\frac{72}{100}$  in this department.

It may be readily seen that, receiving as we do, a large proportion of the recent accidents occurring within the limits of our State, if brought to the Hospital within twenty-four hours, our expenditures must be very heavy; and as this class are admitted and treated gratuitously, the cause of the deficiency referred to must be apparent. We would desire again to call the especial attention of the friends of the institution to the great importance of providing additional funds, to enable us to meet our current expenses, without the necessity of frequent appeals being made to our philanthropic and benevolent fellow-citizens. With the large and rapid increase of our population there will be a corresponding necessity to provide for a greater number of suffering patients, which can only be met as we desire to meet it, by a willingness on the part of our friends to aid us.

The annual accounts, herewith submitted, will show that without the contributions made two years since, and extending over a period of four years, and the longest for five years, the city branch could not have been sustained without a considerable reduction in the number of its inmates. This would be a cause of deep regret, and we trust will be regarded as a loud appeal on behalf of suffering humanity to continue and extend the usefulness of the Institution.

Since the last Report of our Treasurer there have been received by him the following legacies and donations in addition to the annual subscriptions, of which a list was given in our last Report, viz. :—

PHILADELPHIA, Fourth Mo. 26, 1869.

TO THE BOARD OF MANAGERS OF THE

GENTLEMEN: The abstract appended to this report of the number of medical and surgical cases admitted into the Pennsylvania Hospital during the past year, will show you that the Institution continues to be as active and as useful as ever in the dispensing of its charity.

We regret not to be able to report to you from year to year any great increase in the number of patients, as both space and means limit us in that respect. With appropriate buildings and ample pecuniary resources, we could within the square of ground that we occupy, make our Hospital one of many more beds; but as these are wanting, we must at present be content with the policy of improving and perfecting the accommodations that we already have.

Notwithstanding the fact that no great accident or calamity involving serious injury to many persons at once, has occurred during the past year, as in 1867, yet the number of recent accidents has considerably exceeded those of the former year. These cases are in keeping with the steady increase of manufacturing and building operations in our city, and the constantly increasing railroad facilities alluded to in the last report, enable them to be easily brought from the manufacturing and mining districts of the interior of the State. The number of accidents monthly are in complete accord with the seasons of out and indoor occupations, rising as high as 81 in June, and running down to 36 in February. This class of cases necessarily increases in a community like ours. They are the most imperious in their demands for relief and receive it most promptly, and they decidedly make the heaviest drafts upon our treasury for their treatment and support. Accidents are all free, admitted without question if brought within the prescribed time, and treated without charge; and any one would widely underestimate the extent of our charity if he should base his judgment of it upon our technical "free list." These facts induce us to reiterate the claims we think we have upon the benevolently disposed citizens of the State, as well as upon those of our own city. The usual variety of surgical cases other than those of accident have been admitted, and many of them have been of great practical interest and importance.

The medical wards have presented the usual number and variety of cases. The number of free beds in both the male and female medical wards ought to be increased, when this becomes possible. The most, indeed the only unpleasant duty the physician has to perform is the rejection of many applicants for treatment, who often turn to leave the receiving room with tears, after vain solicitations for admission.

The new lecture room was occupied about the middle of January. It answers admirably as to its capacity to accommodate students, and its acoustic and visual properties are all that could be desired. The alterations and additions of a minor character which are to be made will enable us fully to carry out the designs for which it was constructed. The Medical and Surgical Staff take this opportunity of thanking the Contributors and the Managers for this noble addition to their means of caring for the sick and wounded, and of imparting instruction to those who are anxious to learn how to relieve the suffering.
